Biography

Ravi Mattu is the editor of Business Life, the daily management pages of the Financial Times.

He joined the Financial Times in 2000 and has worked in a range of roles, including editor of Mastering Management, commissioning editor on the FT Magazine and editor of Special Reports (magazines and websites), during which time he launched a number of publications including FT Wealth and the business of sport magazines. He is also the co-chair of FT Innovate, the paper’s annual conference bringing together cutting edge ideas and business leaders.

Before joining the FT, Mattu was an editor at Prospect magazine. He began his career at Harper’s Magazine in New York.

A Canadian based in London since 1997, Mattu has first-hand knowledge of both Winter and Summer Olympics and the impact they can have on host cities. He will be able to offer insights into the logistical and management challenges for organizers, communities and businesses – and how the smartest among them have been able to use the opportunity to their advantage.
